

Wronghut's Mazement Available on iOS April 4th

Tampere, Finland - March 14.3. 2013 - Wronghut announced today the release date of the Mazement mobile game. The game will be available worldwide on the Apple App Store on April 4th with the price of $1.99.

Mazement is a ball rolling game that combines an epic fantasy story with the traditional wooden labyrinth and platformer games. The game has great 3D graphics, interesting physics and a destructible environment. You control the tilt of the playing field to guide the ball safely through increasingly difficult 3D levels. It is an amazingly fun platformer puzzle game, filled with challenging mazes, traps and enemies. Blast your way through walls! Hop over obstacles using Big Jump! Watch out for the evil Jailer and the mysterious Witch! Find your way out of the tower and set your ball friends free! Will you be able to finish the last levels with a 5-star rating and beat the boss enemies?

"Mazement really brings something new for ball rolling games, some of which are the tilting of the level instead of ball control, a destructible environment, and a story. The control is really accurate and fun to play, and the story really makes you feel you are playing in another world. We have really achieved awesome graphics merged with accurate gameplay to maximize the fun factor!", says Jukka Mikkonen, the game designer from Wronghut.

Mazement will become available on other mobile platforms later this year. The iOS version will work from iPhone4S onwards, and on the new iPad. We hope to optimize the game further to bring it to new platforms in the very near future.
